SSU Student Faces Transplant

"I'm not going to let it stop me"

Jim Hudson
News Editor

Johnny Melvin is an average college student who is looking forward to life after graduation in December. From Elkton, Maryland, Johnny is involved with Salisbury State's choir and Outdoor Club and loves movies, fishing, hiking, camping and biking.

Johnny, however, has a slightly different outlook on things than most seniors. At the end of January, when most of us were digging out from the Blizzard of '96, Johnny found out that he is battling time.

A diabetic for 18 years, Johnny was told that his disease was slowly, silently destroying his kidneys. Because of the damage, he needs a kidney and pancreas transplant. The new pancreas would allow him to regulate his glucose and prevent damage to the new kidney.

This news might have thrown most people into despair, but not Johnny Melvin. Johnny has remained incredibly optimistic through the entire ordeal. "I know there is a risk, and strong possibility I could die, but I'm not focusing on that. There are people out there who are a lot worse than me."

Johnny is more worried about how his parents are taking the news. "It's been harder on my family than it has been on me. Both my parents were pretty shaken."

Carol Melvin, Johnny's mother, told The Cecil Whig, "It's been devastating . . . I'm scared everyday."

Billy Brown, Johnny's best friend, was also severely upset. "I thought, 'It can't happen to him, he's too good a person for it to happen to him.'"

Johnny, however, insists that it could be worse. He's especially warmed by the outpouring of concern from Salisbury State University. "I appreciate all the support and love this campus has shown me, from the people I know to strangers I just met. I've had nothing but support, and we can all be proud of that."

The campus is coming together to help Johnny raise money to go toward the two surgeries which could cost as much as $75,000 each. The doctors' bills don't stop there, however. After the operation, Johnny will have to take up to 16 kinds of anti-rejection drugs a day. Johnny has no insurance.

But Johnny's not focusing on the negative. "Of course it's changed my life, but life changes. I'm just rolling with the punches. I have to. I'm not going to let it stop me. If

Lets Get Multi-Cultural

Becky Eaddy
Flyer Staff Writer

Walking along the crowded sidewalks of SSU, you may notice a circle of students kicking a Hacky-Sack, some in-line skaters or even a jelly bean fight in front of the dining hall. Among the make-up of this crowd are students from 27 different countries represented at Salisbury State.

In an effort to make students aware of cultural uniqueness, and to welcome those off us not from around these parts, the Multi-Cultural Festival at SSU is set for April 25-27. The festival's theme is "Unity in the Community," and participation from students, faculty and staff will be campus-wide.

Opening the event is "Hands Across the Campus," Thursday, April 25, at 11:00 a.m. People on campus during this time will join hands in an act of unifying the University, and

Congressman Speaks at SSU

Heather Crutchfield

On Monday, April 8th, Congressman Wayne Gilchrest (R-Maryland) spoke at SSU on environmental issues and the "apparent conflict between environmentalists and conservatives."

The Wicomico Room supported a diverse crowd interested in issues of the environment as well as other issues that are currently being discussed by congress. Gilchrest's audience was mostly comprised of area residents, many of whom knew Gilchrest personally.

Gilchrest, who spoke at the invitation of Bioenvirons, said that the government has a lot of conservation efforts underway to make up for some of humanity's mistakes in the past. "When I was a kid," stated Gilchrest, "you would go to a dump, usually near a

SGA Works To Include Student Speaker at Commencement

Kenna Brigham
Flyer Staff Writer

Every semester around this time the same question is asked: Why doesn't a student speak at the commencement exercises? The question is brought up, but nothing is ever done about it. The SGA decided to try to answer that question. Two senior senators, Karen Archambault and Amy Prignano, took on the issue last semester.

Both students are also student representatives on the commencement committee. Prignano explained that Dean of Students Carol Williamson, a member of the committee, asked Archambault and her to go to the December commencement and tell her what they thought. Prignano stated, "One thing that Karen and I noticed was that there was no student speaker."

They began the process of trying to add a student speaker to the commencement's agenda. Archambault explained, "Amy and I wrote up an original proposal and sent it to [commencement committee members] Dr. [Arlene] White, Dr. [Edward] Shaffer, and Dean [of students Carol] Williamson. They looked it over and then we took it to a full commencement committee meeting earlier this semester."

Archambault and Prignano, with the help of other SGA members, also called the schools within the University of Maryland System to see if a student speaker was included in commencement and how that student was chosen.

Archambault made the presentation to the commencement committee. They turned down the proposal after discussing the issue.

Archambault stated, "Dr. [K. Nelson] Butler, [SSU Interim President] was not at the meeting, but he had already looked at the proposal. While he thought it was a really good idea, he didn't feel right as the interim president making any major changes."

Phillip Creighton, interim provost and chair of the commencement committee echoed Archambault's reasoning. He stated, "I took the proposal to Dr. Butler and discussed it with him. We agreed that it would be best to wait until we get the leadership of the university settled before such a decision is made." He added, "It was my recommendation to the commencement committee that we do not lock a new president into this until they have an opportunity to decide themselves what they want to do as far as commencement."

Butler stated, "We are in a nebulous state [in terms of the presidential transition]. If it's a decision I have to make and there is compelling reasons to do so, I'll make a decision to change things. I wouldn't be doing my job if I didn't. I'm not going to sit here like a bump on a log."

Archambault mentioned a temporary decision for this spring's commencement. "[The committee] asked if we were interested in changing the exercises permanently or just for [this semester's] commencement. I said that we were really looking to set a precedent for future graduations." Butler explained, "I suppose I could have [passed a temporary decision], but I wouldn't do that unless I went through a discussion with the committee. I think you need to go through an investigation and analysis of the situation and then make a decision about [the issue]."

Archambault and Prignano plan to present the proposal to the commencement committee to have a student speaker next semester. The formal presentation will occur right after the new president takes office, according to Archambault. Prignano explained, "We plan to come back to do the formal presentation to the new president." A committee of interested SGA senators has also been formed to take over after Archambault and Prignano graduate.

Creighton added, "I don't think anybody on the committee has found anything objectionable about the proposal. I think everyone agreed that it was a very good idea. It's the timing that is the problem." Butler mentioned that he wouldn't object to having a student speaker, but only after a thorough discussion with the commencement committee. Archambault stated, "It's true we won't have a [student] speaker at our commencement and while that's not what we wanted, it is most likely going to go through. We have the support of students, faculty and staff."

History Department Fights to Reinstate Their Masters Degree Program

Miranda Buck
Flyer Staff Writer

Salisbury State should have the program back. The masters program is important for many reasons. It serves the community because teachers in the area can maintain their certification by taking upper level courses, a requirement in many education systems.

The closest school that offers a masters in history is Washington College, which is about 80 miles away. It is an expensive private school, making it unfeasible for teachers who are already working and just want to take a few extra courses.

Secondly, a masters program allows professors to offer students a more specialized education. Masters students are more likely to use the in-depth research materials at the Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture, which consists almost entirely of primary sources relating specifically to

At the time, the program was just starting to grow in popularity. Since then interest in reviving the program has grown, and it seems only natural that the history of the Eastern Shore.

"The Eastern Shore is a unique place to study, and the resource center deserves to have people who can appreciate it," said Bart Talbert, professor of history.

If the reason for cutting the program was financial, is it feasible to have the program now? According to Thompson and Talbert, it costs very little, if anything, to have the program. This is because most of the classes in the graduate program are already offered, the only difference is that the student would register at a 500 level and attend classes in a 300 or 400 level lecture.

The professor would have to tailor the program for the graduate student, but it would be at no extra cost to the university. In fact, it would actually bring more money into the university due to the tuition paid by graduate students.

"At larger universities, professors hire graduate assistants to help with the extra duties of a graduate program, but here, the professors would be responsible for the extra work, something that the faculty would be happy to do because the benefits are so profound," said Talbert.

A history department committee has been formed to try to get the program back. They have organized a letter writing campaign and welcome any letters from students or faculty. The process of reinstating an academic program involves a lot of red tape, so the more support the better. Letters should be given either directly to Ray Thompson or mailed to him c/o the History department.

"I feel that the number of people interested in registering for the program, and the benefits that result, give us a good chance of

Festival Planned to Raise Awareness About Jewish Culture

Yoav Wachsman
Flyer Staff Writer

Most of the Jews who have migrated to the United States have settled in large, urban areas such as New York City and Chicago. Very few Jewish immigrants found their way to the Eastern Shore, and for that reason there is little awareness about Jewish culture at Salisbury State University and in the surrounding community.

Jewish students at SSU number few, but, in spite of their numbers, a bunch of them banded together and formed the Jewish Students Association. "The JSA," according to the organization's president, Andy Hanover, "has two goals in mind. First, it provides Jews students with a voice that any group of people, in my opinion, needs. Secondly, the JSA tries to expose people around the university to Jewish culture so they can perhaps understand it a little better."

Currently the JSA is working towards its second goal by organizing a Festival of Jewish Life. Michelle Raphaely, JSA's secretary, said that "the festival is going to combine a lot of different Jewish traditions from various Jewish holidays as well as traditional Jewish food and Israeli folk dances."

Raphaely believes that the JSA has to make students and faculty more aware and sensitive to Jewish culture and life because many of them assume that everyone has a similar cultural background. She explained that she became really upset when her teacher asked her what she does when she goes to church.

Although the festival is designed to enlighten members of the campus community, that is not the only thing it is going to do according to Hanover. Hanover explained that "the festival is going to give students and faculty a chance to have fun dancing, playing various games and socializing in a slightly different setting than what most of them are used to."

Raphaely said that the JSA has "placed flyers around campus and given out personal invitations in order to get as many people interested as possible. She also adds that "we [the JSA] want students and faculty to come and see what Judaism is all about."

The Jewish Festival of Life is not the only way the JSA is planning to raise awareness about minority groups at SSU this semester. Today, the JSA has organized a Silent March for Life to commemorate the lives of those who were persecuted and executed by the Nazis.

The Festival of Jewish Life will occur next Friday, April 26, in Nanticoke Room A starting at 9 p.m. Raphaely emphasized that "all are welcome to come and bring their friends."

creek, and throw your garbage in a pile."

Gilchrest made it clear that even though the majority in Congress is Republican (which traditionally means conservative) that does not mean that money is going to be completely cut-off from environmental programs.

Although he said that the "new Congress's goal is to balance the budget and get rid of redundant regulations," he said that this would be beneficial because there are many regulations and acts that are receiving money which are useless, out of date, or simply need rewriting.

He said "Conservatism and environmentalism can co-exist if we understand that we have to balance the budget."

"What this Congress has done, is begin to look at regulations like they've never been looked at before,"

Gilchrest explained. He said that with a restricted budget, things are more scrutinized and decisions with environmental issues need to be supported by good scientific evidence.

In closing, Gilchrest wanted everyone to leave the presentation with a feeling of optimism about what's going on in Washington. He said, "Fighting to protect the environment will be every generation's responsibility."

Unhappy With Water Tower

To whom it may concern,

I would like to inform the members of the Salisbury City Council about a concern of mine. I believe it is also a concern of other students attending Salisbury State University, and the local residents of Salisbury.

I am referring to the water tower located near the corner of West College Avenue and Route 13, behind the Cottage Cafe. It has become an eyesore to the community as it is in dire need of repainting. Furthermore, I feel that this water tower is long over due for maintenance and I would like the city to rectify this situation as soon as possible.

Also, I am sure with all the visitors to the area (in particular Salisbury State University) that it's in the best interest of the community to maintain the tower.

I hope that this issue could be raised at a future city council meeting. Please contact me so that I may attend the next city council meeting when this matter is addressed.

Thank you for considering this concern. I look forward to working with the city council to expedite this matter so that we may maintain the visually pleasing image of Salisbury.

Sincerely,

POS

By having English as our national "official" language, it would force everyone to learn English. This nation has a majority of its population speaking English. The world's businesses use English, because of the large impact the US has on the world's economy. It was my understanding that in order to become a US citizen you must have a working knowledge of English and be able to speak it with some fluency. This will enable law enforcement officials to deport illegal immigrants, many of whom do not know any English, or very little, though it could also lead to abuses of the system.

Should English be the only "official" language though? While this letter may give the impression that I feel that ONLY English should be recognized as such, that is not my true feeling. English and Spanish should be our nation's Official languages. And EVERY American should eventually be required to be bilingual.

Goodall Visit Leaves Belated Message for SSU

Miranda Buck
Flyer Staff Writer

Many people recognize Dr. Jane Goodall as "the chimp lady," but for anyone who attended her recent lecture on Thursday, April 4, this description seems highly inadequate.

Goodall's efforts have turned her into a profound conservationist with inventive programs that are making a difference. Dr. Goodall not only represents decades of work and discovery about the behavior of chimpanzees, but she's hope for their future as well.

Her 35 year study with chimpanzees gave her an intimate understanding of their behaviors as well as those of humans. Her findings have changed the world's perspective on primates and continue to lead to other astonishing discoveries.

As Dr. Goodall came face to face with the work of poachers and the illegal sale of chimps as pets, she began to realize that she faced another calling. As she encountered the imprisoned chimps in market places and local homes, she was horrified at their blank personalities in comparison to those of the chimps she had worked with in the decades before.

Deeply motivated by their pain and uncharacteristic behaviors, she began working to save them. Her efforts helped establish the Chimp Guardian Program, an orphan program that serves to nurse injured and emotionally distraught chimps that have experienced inhumane living conditions.

Additionally, Dr. Goodall established the ChimpanZoo organization. More than 130 chimps are used in this research program that employs students, keepers and trained staff for the observation and study of chimp behavior. The program allows for research without restrictive or unhealthy living conditions which would be detrimental to their well-being. Her deep compassion for animals is reflected in what she provides: safe and healthy conditions for chimpanzees. Whereas in the wild, their lives would continue to be threatened.

It is the lack of respect for animals that urges Dr. Goodall to condemn cruel laboratory research. She stresses that "scientists should work harder to find other methods of study, some of which might be better."

She says that "humans are arrogant to assume that we have the right to use other forms of life for our benefit, and it is important that people learn that animal research is not the backbone of scientific class.

Other activities are scheduled as well, to continue the spread of unity at SSU during the festival. Some performances include Ben Andrews with the "History of the Blues;" the Kotobuki dance of Japan; Djimo Kouyaté entertaining with the Kora (an African musical instrument); a Native American Pow Wow; a dance from a company of students from Thailand; as well as African music performed by Peter Pipin, of the Smithsonian Institution.

A multi-cultural dance will conclude the "Unity in the Community" celebration Saturday night, April 27, in the Wicomico room at the Guerrero University Center. Cultural diversity will be the topic of the evening as participants will be treated with music from around the world. Awards for the Spring Olympics will also be presented at the dance Saturday evening.

Learning about the cultures of others is one way to unite, and offering a warm welcome makes the process that much easier. For more information call 543-6080.

Earth Day Has Shined Again

Not Everybody Forgot

Jayne Hill
Flyer Staff Writer

Twenty-six years ago, Earth Day gave hope to a generation plagued with the Vietnam war, civil rights issues, and the burnout caused by the Summer of Love. In the midst of social strife, everyone could agree on one thing: The future of the environment was in dire straits and the world as a whole should pay attention to preserving it.

With the state of affairs in the U.S. under less fire nowadays, what about Earth Day?

In recent years, the fervor attached to Earth Day has lost its steam. Celebrations have become wildly overdone, and with almost everyone jumping on the environmental bandwagon, recycling and similar campaigns, a false sense of environmental accomplishment lingers.

The SGA will be hosting a benefit during the celebration to sponsor a tree in a national park. The proceeds would go to the park itself for maintenance and other necessities.

The Seventh Annual March for Parks, held in over 900 communities across the nation, will have sponsors pledge money to support a local or national park, historical sight, or monument of their choice. Participants then walk through the site together in a fundraiser for their chosen location. Efforts have been made by the SSU Outdoor Club to participate in the event, which is sponsored by the National Parks Conservation Association, but have been unsuccessful due to a lack of support.

Sophomore Danny Smigal put this in perspective: "When a holiday draws near, people remember to treat each other with respect. When Earth Day draws near, people remember to treat the earth with respect. I hope there comes a day when humanity and nature can coexist peacefully everyday, and not just those that are highlighted on a calendar."

Benefits such as this have become Earth Day trademarks. "Behind all the hype, there is a message...Earth Day is a

For Now, Osborne Relishes the Moment

Jessica Norris
Flyer Staff Writer

Since the explosion of her major-label debut, "Relish," in March 1995, the Kentucky-bred Joan Osborne has been doing nothing but alluring music listeners with out-of-the-ordinary songs contemplating sex and faith, pleasure and trust, among despair and loss.

The songs which stemmed from some happenings on the streets of New York City are about a drug-addicted hooker and a suicidal friend, about an estranged father and about walking home past a marijuana dealer.

Osborne's lyrics present sexual and spiritual themes, sang soulfully to the backdrop of guitars, mandolin and piano.

Her eccentricity and her emotionally moving songs were delivered to a jam packed, sold out show at the 9:30 Club in Washington, D.C., on Tuesday, April 9.

Osborne, who came out on stage with a cropped shirt, a black short slip and black tights delivered her passionate material to a screaming crowd of nearly 1,000 at club's new location on V St., in Northwest D.C.

liberating thing."

Osborne was born in Anchorage, Kentucky and moved northward in the late 1980's to study film making at New York University. Between jobs as a Fotomat clerk and a singing telegram messenger, she successfully worked her way through the East Coast bar circuit.

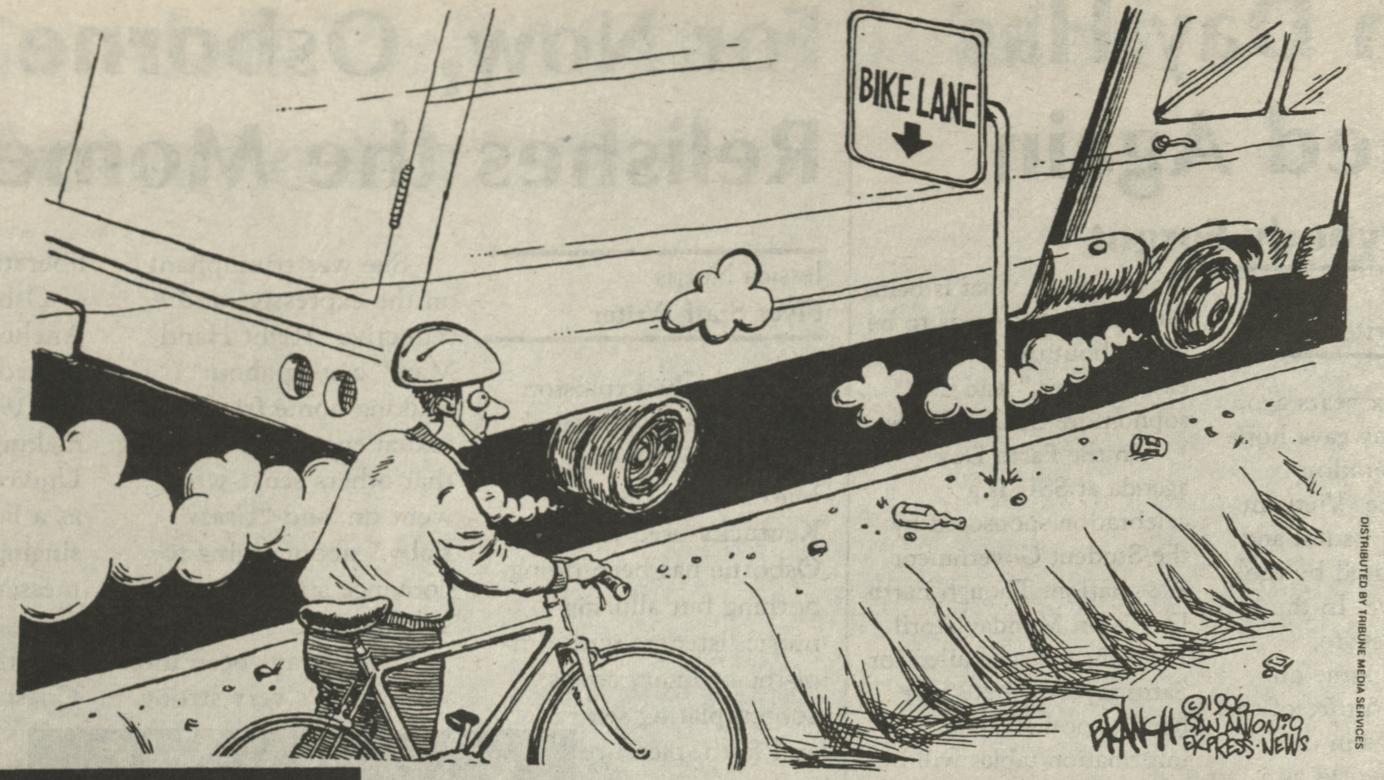

In 1991, her release "Soul Show," recorded live at the club Delta 88, and her 1993 ep "Blue Million Miles," helped make a name for the shy eyed blonde. Both of these, recorded on Osborne's own label, Womanly Hips, helped her land a shot with a major label. Mercury released "Relish" in 1995, and the album could not have been more successful.

Osborne has always had an interest in very powerful and what she calls "female" music. As well as with gospel and religious music from different cultures, which are all incorporated into her eccentric songs, Osborne pays attention to what's contemporary.

The roars and the cheers became even more intense at the 9:30 when she closed with her smash-hit "One of Us," a song that ponders the reality of His presence among us.

Women's LAX Stops Frostburg State

Blanchette Leads Way With Three Goals and Three Assists

Jeff Brameyer
Sports Editor

On a day where the team's four seniors were honored with flowers in a pregame ceremony, the entire Salisbury State University women's lacrosse team seemed to step-up their game to another level as they crushed visiting Frostburg State here on Saturday 11-6.

Five players scored for the Lady Gulls on Saturday with Candice Blanchette and Shannon Cordell leading the way with three goals apiece. Laura Burkhouse and Heather Crowley each added two goals apiece and Carrie Spilecki had one of her own to round out the scoring for the Gulls.

Burkhouse opened the scoring on an assist from Blanchette just five minutes into the match. Spilecki then added another goal on a penalty shot less than two minutes later. Blanchette added another with a half field burst of speed to fire a beautiful shot past Frostburg goalkeeper Tenille Foster to push the score to 4-0.

Cordell had her first of the game as the Lady Gulls found themselves with a 5-0 lead with 18:57 seconds still left to be played in the first half.

SSU was not only dominating the game on the offensive side but the defense played a solid game as well for the Lady Gulls. Senior Kim Smith anchored the defensive unit with a spectacular day in which she commented head coach Dawn Chamberlin, "We did the basics well and when you do those things well, things fall in place for you."

"Things" were falling right into the Lady Gulls for the entire first half as they went into the break with an 8-1 lead with two more goals by Blanchette and another by Cordell.

The main ingredient in the win seemed to be the all around team effort the Gulls put forth. "We all had our heads in it today," said sophomore Laura Burkhouse, "We put it together as a team today."

The second half opened up a bit stale with more than half the period going by without any scoring until Frostburg put one past Block with 13:18 left in the game.

Coach Chamberlin called a quick timeout to regroup her troops and tell them to get the offense going again. The Lady Gulls reacted immediately. After the timeout, Burkhouse took the ball off a face off and went all the way to the goal to up the SSU lead to 9-2. Shortly thereafter Blanchette fed Cordell from behind the net and Cordell put a shot past Foster for a 10-2 lead. Crowley ended SSU's scoring with a goal with 4:44 left of a feed from Renee Kretkowski.

The seniors were honored for their years of dedication to the women's lacrosse team and all the players felt it was important to make sure they got a win for them. "I think it was a big day for all our seniors," commented Crowley, a senior as well. "We just pulled it together as a team."

The Lady Gulls saw their potential on Saturday when they all play together as a team. They upped their record to 4-6 on the season and look to finish the remainder of the year as strong as they played on Saturday.

Track Looks Impressive

Elizabeth Pagel
Flyer Staff Writer

With the conference championships drawing near, the men's and women's track and field teams have begun the process of fine tuning their skills and hitting their peak performances. The Sea Gulls set out to do just that at the Shippensburg Relays this weekend.

"All the way through this season we have been experimenting with people in different events, trying to find the perfect combination to win conferences," said Coach Latham. "This meet was a good indicator of who we will put where."

Kristin Wimbrow continued to excel at the high jump, winning with a jump of 5'4". Mike Okoh and Myron Dent scored a pair of second place finishes in the long jump and 100m dash respectively. Vicki Huchko ran a 41:19, beating the school record time in the 10K and came back to place second in the 5K.

Jen Harrision competed in five events, and scored a total of 18 points and placed first in the 100m hurdles.

SSU runners also brought some strong personal performances to the meet, with senior Matt

Piotrowski returning to the 1500m after a two month break due to injury. Jeff Hankins claimed third in the 3000m steeplechase and 5000m run, facing the elite competition of Steve Spence, a member of the 1992 US Olympic Marathon team.

The Lady Gulls placed third out of 16 teams, a mix of Division II and III teams, as well as junior colleges, while the men placed sixth overall.

Looking ahead to conferences, Mary Washington looks to be the toughest competition facing SSU, but Coach Latham feels that both teams have a strong shot at the title.

Softball Tops York

Stays Undefeated in Conference Play at Home Opener

Jeff Brameyer
Sports Editor

The Salisbury State University softball team celebrated its much overdue home opener by sweeping York College of Pennsylvania here on Saturday 11-0, 15-7 in Capital Athletic Conference action.

The twenty-second ranked Lady Gulls improved their unbeaten conference record to 6-0 and upped their overall record to 15-7.

Head coach Deanna Parks

was excited to finally play the home opener that has been canceled numerous times because of inclement weather. "It's frustrating not playing at home because we set the schedule up to have a nice mixture," commented Parks, "We realize we have a nice facility with one of the best fields in the conference. It's comfortable being at home."

The Lady Gulls found themselves in a very comfortable position in the first game where Tracy Layfield pitched a one hit complete game. Layfield was backed up by her offense as usual as Becky Keller hit two home runs including a grand slam and a two-run shot for a total of six RBIs. Kara Burman added two hits and two RBIs and scored three runs. Freshman Megan Hopper, who leads the team in runs scored had two hits, two RBIs and scored two runs. Myra Parks and Amanda Kopchinski both added two hits apiece.

SSU found themselves down 7-3 in the nightcap but rebounded with 12 unanswered runs to win the game. Jen Burchette had two RBIs along with Burman to give her four on the day. Keller increased her totals on an amazing day to finish with 8 RBIs. Layfield again picked up the win in the game with two innings of scoreless relief.

hits, with Godfrey adding four RBIs and Criscimagna two. Left fielder Scott Hall added three hits and three RBIs.

Pitching went quickly from a question mark to the team's strength. After losing McClellan in the second inning, the team got a standout middle relief performance by Keith Zukowski. Zukowski pitched 5 2/3 solid innings, allowing only the solo homerun, and picked up the victory. Closer Chris Yagosh came into the game in the eighth inning and finished things off.

The non-conference victory improves the team's record to 11-9. They host Virginia Wesleyan on Tuesday before beginning CAC tournament competition on Thursday. Their opponent and destination had yet to be determined at press time.

SSU Baseball Fights Back to Beat Christopher Newport

The Salisbury State University baseball team beat Adelphi University on Saturday in a match-up of defending national champions. Adelphi, the Division II national champs last year looked to be tough competition fostering a 9-8 halftime lead, but the Gulls took control of the game in the second half to win 15-9.

It was a Division III record 44th straight win for the Gulls who were lead by Paul Smith's five goals and two assists. Salisbury moved to 11-0 on the season with the win.

ΔΓ

Delta Gamma

We have started working with some visually impaired students at Parkside H.S. Thanks to Sigma Tau Gamma for Happy Hour Social. I'd say that everyone was pretty "Happy". The pledges are busy working their way towards initiation. We would like to thank Amy Frailey for all her hard work putting our Spring Date Party together. Greek Week is getting closer, it's time to show some spirit and win some points.

ΣΑΕ

Sigma Alpha Epsilon

Will spring ever be here? Softball has begun as has our march towards another championship, and then snow? Hey Alpha Xi, anytime you guys feel like getting started just let us know. Greek Week is coming and we've intensely trained (12oz. curls) ha ha. Paddy Murphy is on May 11th and it's only 10 bucks. Shell it put or else! T-shirts will be there as well as the Greek Carnival so hold off on laundry and bring us those quarters. Finally, sunshine is coming so lets see some skin. Just kidding? See ya.

AST

Alpha Sigma Tau

AST is strong on tradition and we're going to make this Greek Week better than the last. We are pumped for the games and ready for the competition. This Friday the Greeks are having a carnival from 11am till 5pm in

TKE

Tau Kappa Epsilon

Everyone is breathing a lot easier now that the General Lee is found. Congratulations goes out to Rob "Buckwheat" Wakefield and Brian "Little 6-Pack" Good who took the journey of a lifetime.

Welcome. After a disappointing loss, TKE softball is 1-1. Our hitting will be back when the playoffs come around. Thanks to those who supported us on Saturday. RCB will be here soon and Ocean City will never be the same. Until next time.....!!!!

ΦΜ

Phi Mu

Nothing much is happening with us this week, but we are looking forward to our annual Carnation Ball on May 3rd. Spring goodies bags are on the way, and the Wicomico Nursing Home is getting prepared for our second Variety Show this semester. Keep up the good work, pledges, the end is near! If anyone wants to get together with us, call Melissa at 83009. Hey, Sig Tau, ready to wrestle?
